First day of blood drive donations shows lower-than-expected total

by Vicki Vass

Eastern students, faculty and area residents donated 366 pints of blood during the first day of this week's Red Cross blood drive, which is 17 pints under last fall's first-day total.

Student blood drive chairman Sandy Beard said, "I don't think we were doing as good due to the weather. People with appointments weren't coming in because they wanted to enjoy the weather."

However, Beard said she thought the loss will be compensated for during the rest of the week. A total of 432 of the 458 people who were expected actually donated, and only 57 were first time donors.

Beard said 12 Charleston residents who had donated recently had to be turned away.

"There was a Christmas blood drive here on Dec. 28. They have to wait 56 days before they give again, which will be tomorrow," she noted.

Beard said she advises people not to wait until the last day of the drive to donate. "If you wait, you might risk the chance of not getting in."

Most people on hand at the Union Ballroom to make their donations Monday seemed to have positive attitudes about giving blood.

Junior Mary Beth Marek said, "This is my second time. I heard a lot about it hurting but I wanted to see for myself. It does hurt a little going in but you feel good after. When my grandpa was sick, they couldn't get his (blood) type because enough people don't donate."

Junior Brian Lane said, "Everybody that can give blood should do it. Other people need it. It doesn't hurt you to give. There's nothing to be worried about. After the first time, it's a breeze."

Six-time donor junior Suzanne Lee said, "When I give blood, I think it might be my mom or dad or someone I love who might need it someday. The first time I gave, my palms were sweaty

'83 spring blood drive and my heart was pumping fast."

"Don't focus on someone poking you. Think about something different. Concentrate on other things beside giving blood," Lee advised.

Senior and six-time donor Tony DeWar said, "The first time everyone feels nervous. Someday you might need some (blood) yourself. It's nice to give a little bit of your own. Throw out myths about it hurting. After the needle goes in, it's smooth sailing."

Senior Karen Papenhouse said, "I enjoy giving blood. It makes you feel good to think you're helping someone else. It's a good experience and it doesn't hurt. This is my sixth time."

Senior Kathy Petersen said, "This is my fourth time. I like to give blood. I like to help people. It's not as bad as you think it will be."

Petition drive set to support tax increases

by Crystal Schrof

Eastern's Student Legislative Committee will be circulating petitions which support a tax increase for higher education, Student Senate Speaker Glenn Good said.

The petition says, "We the undersigned support a tax increase, to ensure funding of higher education at or above the present level."

In the State of the State address, Gov. Jim Thompson proposed a record $2 billion tax increase. Thompson also asked for a 40-percent hike in the levy on corporate income, plus increases in the gasoline tax, vehicle license fees and the liquor tax.

Good said the Student Legislative Committee is aiming for 2,000 student signatures on the petition. The petitions will then be sent to State Representative Harry "Babe" Woodyard and to Thompson.

Student senators will be circulating petitions in the residence halls and will have a table set up in the Union next week so students can sign petitions, Good said.

Also, senators will be attending residence halls' council meetings in an effort to gain support for a tax increase, he added.

Good said he believes sending petitions to legislators will show them student concerns.

"The committee began the petitions because they felt it would be an effective way to support a tax increase for more funding for higher education," Good said.

Eastern's RHA wins School of Year award at recent conference

by Melinda Wilson

Eastern's Residence Hall Association received the School of the Year award at the Illinois Residence Hall Association conference this weekend at Illinois State University.

Eastern National Communication Coordinator Betsy Hagi said the award is a new one based on contributions of the RHA on the state level.

"Our enthusiasm and support plus contributions (made by Eastern) shown at ISU helped us win the award," Hagi noted.

Hagi said the School of the Year, based on each RHA's participation at the conference, was voted on by the IRHA executive board. The board consists of IRHA's president from Illinois State, administrative vice president from Western Illinois University and financial vice president from Millikin University.

About 200 people from 12 Illinois colleges attended the weekend conference, Hagi said.

The Largest Delegation Award was also won by Eastern, which sent 35 members and two advisers, Hagi said. By winning the award, Eastern defeated some of the bigger state colleges during the annual event.

Also, Hagi received an Outstanding NCC Award. "The award was given to all the NCC's that kept up participation to other members of state schools with newsletters and reports," she said.

Certificates were given for the group awards and Hagi received a whistle for her award.

"They told me that I needed the whistle to keep all of the members in line. I told them I needed it before the conference and not after," she joked.

The conference cost of $43 per person for Eastern RHA members attending was subsidized by the Housing Office through profits made on vending machines and video games in residence halls, RHA President Lynn Vokac said.

OPEC calls emergency meeting

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia—Six Persian Gulf oil-producing nations facing a possible worldwide price war called an emergency meeting for Tuesday. A Saudi newspaper said they planned rollbacks of up to $7 a barrel.

The state-run Saudi Press Agency said ministers at the Saudi-led Gulf Coordination council would meet in Riyadh to discuss "current trends in the petroleum market" because of price reductions by Nigeria, Britain and Norway.

A price war would benefit gasoline consumers in the United States because each $1 drop in the price of a barrel of crude oil represents a 2 and one-half-cent drop at the pump. But major reductions in prices would hurt Third World oil producers, which rely on petroleum sales to pay off their foreign debts to Western banks.

Reagan's peace plan criticized

ALGIERS, Algeria—The political committee of the Palestinian parliament criticized President Reagan's Middle East peace plan Monday, but a spokesman said the group stopped short of outright rejection.

The move was a victory for Palestine Liberation organization chief Yasser Arafat. The guerrilla leader fought behind the scenes all week against hardliners in the Palestine National Council who demanded a flat rejection.

"The Reagan plan is not enough," sources quoted Arafat as telling the council Monday. "But to turn it down flatly would deprive the PLO of its links with the United States and of the Arab sources of badly needed financial aid."

Syrians block rescue attempts

YARZE, Lebanon—The Syrian army on Monday turned back a major rescue operation mounted by U.S. Marines and Italian and French soldiers to save dozens of motorists stranded by a blizzard that has killed at least 39 people.

Monday's operation was halted by the Syrian army after the multinational convoy of armored vehicles, jeeps and trucks had reached the east Beirut suburb of Yarze on its way into the 3,300-foot-high central mountains.

The convoy would have had to cross into the Syrian front lines 25 miles east of Beirut to reach the hardest-hit area, the ski resort of Dahr al-Baidar. More than 100 people were feared buried in the snow there.

Reagan's drug campaign failing

After one year of the Reagan administration's war on drugs, the government's own figures show that on U.S. streets heroin and cocaine are slightly more plentiful, cheaper and purer, and marijuana prices have remained stable.

Top-level officials of the Drug Enforcement Administration acknowledge there was no decline in the overall availability and consumption of illegal drugs in the United States in 1982.

DEA Administrator Francis Mullen said the government had its best year ever in destroying domestic marijuana fields, eradicating about 1,650 metric tons. "Now our previous estimates were that we had only 1,200 metric tons being grown domestically, we found there is more domestic marijuana than we thought was out there."

India's minister visits survivors

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Indira Gandhi paid a six-hour visit to Assam on Monday and briefly relived with dazed survivors the eastern Indian state's 19-day-old holocaust of slaughter, estimated to have taken up to 1,400 lives.

During her absence, Parliament was locked in angry debate over the controversial election she ordered in Assam and the bloodbath that ensued.

An opposition speaker, former Railway Minister Madhu Dandavate, accused the 65-year-old prime minister of using "Hitlerite tactics" to impose "a live election over dead bodies" in Assam. Government members charged opposition parties indirectly supported the violence.

Mrs. Gandhi called the elections in January after the collapse of negotiations with student leaders of the predominantly Hindu Assamese Movement, which is demanding that hundreds of thousands of Bengali-speaking natives and emigrants from neighboring Bangladesh, most of them Moslems, be removed from the voting lists. The movement wants them expelled from Assam.

The Assamese Movement leaders unleashed all-out agitation against the elections on Feb. 2. Escalating violence, in which more than 430 people were reported slain, culminated in the massacre last Friday by Hindu tribespeople of between 600 and 1,000 men, women and children in 17 villages of the Nelli area 450 miles northeast of Calcutta.

Army troops moved into Nelli and other areas to prevent mass reprisals by surviving villagers, reports said. But elsewhere in the state, 31 more deaths were reported Monday.

Hijackers hold out for supplies

VALLETTA, Malta (AP)—Prime Minister Dom Mintoff was reported "holding firm" Monday against three hijackers threatening to blow up a Libyan jetliner unless he provided fuel, and food and medicine for 165 people aboard the Boeing 727.

Officials said 156 passengers, including dozens of women and children and six crew members, had been held hostage without food and water since Sunday night aboard the jet parked on a remote corner of Valletta's Luqa International Airport, 225 miles north of the Libyan coast.

Government spokesman Paul Mifsud said Mintoff and three Cabinet ministers were talking by radio with the hijackers, who "are threatening to blow up the plane. But the prime minister is holding firm."

He said all the passengers had Arabic names, and an airport official who asked not to be identified said, "Judging by their accents, all the hijackers appear to be Libyans."

Asked if the demand for medicine indicated there might be wounded aboard, airport officials said there was no sign that there had been any violence. Mifsud said the hijackers were armed, but he did not know what weapons they had.

The flight originated in the south Libyan city of Sebha and was en route to Tripoli, the capital, on the coast. Western diplomatic sources said it might be carrying troops to another African nation. But Mifsud said there were a substantial number of women and children aboard. One airport official said one of the hijackers reported there were as many as 45 children aboard.

Chicago mayors race tightens

CHICAGO (AP)—Mayor Jane M. Byrne, accused of pursuing "a strategy of fear, emotionalism and hysteria" to win Tuesday's Democratic primary, said Monday she knew nothing about a key backer's alleged use of an anti-black sales pitch on white voters.

Racial remarks attributed to Democratic Party Chairman Edward R. Vrdolyak began the major focus of controversy on the closing day of a tight, three-way race that officials say will draw a record million-plus turnout in the nation's second largest city.

Mrs. Byrne told reporters she was unaware of a statement attributed to Vrdolyak in which he allegedly urged precinct captains to tell whites that a vote for Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley, son of the city's late mayor, would merely help black U.S. Rep. Harold Washington and bring about "the worst day in the history of Chicago."

"I've been campaigning so hard, I don't know what he has been saying," Mrs. Byrne said about Vrdolyak as she dipped into a canvas bag and passed out her green lapel buttons to all takers in a downtown street.

Vrdolyak denied reports published in Chicago newspapers that over the weekend he told precinct captains to spread the word that voting for Daley would help Washington.

Washington, 60, told a news conference he was concerned about the use of racial campaign tactics but more worried about possible ballot box fraud, despite an army of thousands of poll watchers descending on Chicago.

"This is the way they do business in Chicago," Washington said at a news conference. "If there were an honest election in this city, the whole country would go bananas."

Daley, 40, running third in the latest published poll, was asked about the racial reports on WGN radio's Wally Phillips Show on Monday morning and replied that Mrs. Byrne is employing "a strategy of fear, emotionalism and hysteria."

Series of incidents plague TAC

by Douglas Backstrom

The demolition of the Tarble Arts Center sign located at the corner of Seventh Street and Hayes Avenue Friday marked the latest of several recent incidents in which TAC property has been damaged.

TAC Director Don Carmichael said he notified campus security about the latest incident after a grounds worker found the sign smashed on the ground. Two Eastern students were in the vehicle that ran over the sign, Sgt. Jack Chambers of campus security said.

Chambers added he will not release the names of the two students until criminal charges have been filed.

"One of the students of the car was charged with leaving the scene of the accident," Chambers said.

Campus security will seek financial restitution for the TAC sign from the university or the courts, he said.

In addition to the loss of the sign, Carmichael said the TAC has been struck by vandalism several times since early September.

"I'm just going to tell the staff to watch the grounds more carefully for anything strange. It's getting so bad now, I don't know what to do," he added.

"I'm not sure if it's the community that is doing it or if Eastern students are doing it," Carmichael said.

Several works of art on display at the TAC have been moved around or turned over on their sides and "some have even been hit with expensive damage," he said.

Recessionary period hurts area merchants

by Mike Pramshafer

With the national economy stuck in the longest recession since World War II, some area businesses are feeling the economy's pinch.

"I think people are more aware of the present economic situation and they are being more careful in what they buy," said Claudia Larimore, chairman of the Charleston Downtown Merchants Association.

Campus business at the Union has also been affected by the economy. Joan Gosset, director of business operations for the Union, said, "Our business has not been as good as last year and we have especially seen a big drop since January."

Gosset said the Union's candy counter has been the most affected by the present economy.

"The candy counter has seen the biggest drop in business because nobody seems to be able to afford what they used to," Gosset said.

Students don't have the spending money that they used to and it seems like they only have enough money to purchase necessities, she said.

"Pocket money isn't as good as it used to be and because of this, students have had to give up purchasing novelties," she added.

Gosset said the bookstore has basically held its own, mainly because students are always in need of school supplies.

"School supplies are keeping the bookstore alive because students are always in need of them," she said.

Gosset added, "As long as we can hold our own with what we've done this year (at the Union), I think we'll be all right."

Concerning Charleston businesses, Martin Owens, Charleston Area Chamber of Commerce vice president said a rise in unemployment has been the economy's major effect on the area.

"Unemployment is a little bit higher this year compared to last year. Things are very tight right now," he said.

Owens said local experts are hoping for a 2 to 4-percent increase in retail sales over the next six months.

Owens added that overall sales are under the national average for this time of year, but he stressed the university's importance to Charleston.

"If Charleston didn't have Eastern, things would be way worse than they are now," Owens said.

"I think the key weapon for us in overcoming the present economic situation is to continue our diversification of businesses and industries," he added.

Illinois State Bureau of Employment statistical research specialist James Emmerich said approximately 4,675 people are currently out of work in the Charleston-Mattoon area.

Emmerich added that the unemployment rate has dropped since last year.

"The Charleston-Mattoon area has had about four or five small businesses open during the year, which in turn opened more jobs," he said.

Jim Bottenberg, manager of Spurgeon's Department Store, 523 Seventh St., said his store's business has risen recently.

"Our business was up, especially during the holidays, and I'm even looking for a 5-percent increase in sales in 1983," Bottenberg said.

A local restaurant owner said, "I think the restaurant business looks good right now, and always will because people never get tired of eating out."

However, Reflection's manager Susan McNeil was not as confident about the future economic scene.

"A lot of people say that the restaurant business will never be in trouble, but I think it can be because there just isn't as much money floating around as there used to be," she said.

Tuition hike action comes too late

Editorial

Eastern's Student Senate leaders should have shaken their lethargy and taken an active role in protesting tuition hikes well in advance of Thursday's Board of Governors meeting.

At Thursday's BOG meeting the fate of next year's tuition bill will be decided. Although the possibility of a tuition hike has been common knowledge all year, Eastern student leaders have not bothered, until now, to organize a protest of the pending increase.

Verbal, active student leaders are needed for successful protest, and it appears Eastern is severely lacking in this area.

BOG student representatives from Eastern, Western, Northeastern, Chicago State and Governors State universities are predicting the BOG staff will recommend its trustees approve a tuition hike 10 to 15 percent above this year's bill.

Our student leaders should have been circulating tuition petitions long ago to protest the possible 10 to 15 percent hike.

However, as of now, the Student Senate's Legislative Committee has been the only group to take action. Eastern's student legislative committee recently began circulating petitions asking for passage of tax bills which could generate needed revenue for education.

Supporting tax increases to benefit education is a good idea, but tax issues will be before the state legislature for at least a few more months, while Thursday is the last day we can have any say in the matter of tuition hikes. Therefore, student representatives should have given tuition hike protest plans priority over tax hike endorsements.

Eastern's student BOG representative Matt Glover and his fellow senate leaders should, in the interest of the students they represent, have circulated petitions protesting tuition hikes. If the senate had taken the initiative to begin this type of action, Eastern students' opinions could have been presented to BOG trustees Thursday.

Our student officials should have also organized plans to transport students who may have been interested in personally voicing their opinions to the BOG meeting.

Instead, the only action the senate has taken was to approve a resolution which Glover will present at the BOG meeting. The resolution states that the Student Senate urges the Board of Governors to approve a level of tuition for 1983-1984 that is not greater than 10 percent above the level students are currently paying.

Glover contends that a tuition hike for next year is inevitable whether an Eastern protest is launched or not.

Glover may be on target with his prediction of an inevitable tuition hike, but not exerting much of a protest effort is like surrendering without bothering to fight the war.

Student representatives should not passively allow this tuition increase to pass unheeded, because students cannot be expected to foot much more of the increasing education bill.

Currently, students pay 23 percent of the cost of instruction. Five years ago, in 1978, students paid only 21.6 percent of instructional costs.

Students have born the brunt of tuition hikes for three consecutive years. If we don't begin to protest loudly now, more and more of us may have to drop out of school because we cannot afford to continue our education.

Writer reflects on living

Editor:

I would like to take a few moments of your time and express some thoughts on the word "life." As college students we are faced with the reality of making something of ourselves and then trying to get into the 9 to 5 rat race.

But did you ever wonder what the world would be like if money did not exist and everyone shared and loved one another? You know—a life similar to the one our old friends, the Indians, live.

Now, I know our society is much more complex but when I think about people like John Lennon and the half-million hippies who sat in for a three-day musical love festival at Woodstock, I have to wonder why we did not follow their actions.

It seems like we are always trying to reach a destination: be it a college degree, a new car, a promotion, a date for Saturday night or whatever. These destinations are what bring about anxiety, depression and poor attitudes when in reality they are just a part of the life we have chosen for ourselves.

Now, I admit I will try to finish up that accounting degree and jump into the 9 to 5 rat race too, but I'm not too worried because I can relate to people like John Lennon and I know my final destination is going to be as peaceful as his.

So you got a cute idea for a non-smoking section at Hardee's. Why didn't you take it to the manager of Hardee's then or directly to the Student Senate? You want something done, but your time is too valuable to waste doing it, right

You guessed it. I am a smoker and ashamed about it. Being a smoker is being able to admit you have a drug dependency. Hooked, just like any other drug addict. Nothing can possibly be worse than someone, anyone, else suffering because of a problem I cannot control.

I am truly sorry if my smoke burns your eyes, but I am also sorry that you are so self-centered not to realize a lot of us (not all, though) care about what impact this has on people we don't even know.

If you are really concerned, how about directing it toward helping those who need help instead of just waving your lips in the already foul air?

File special form if your father loses his job

(Editor's note: The following column is the second in a five-part series dealing with financial aid.)

"My father lost his job last week! How am I going to pay for school?"

No matter how many times I have heard that and similar statements through the years, I never get used to it, and every time, I momentarily sense the same panic. It is with relief that I am able to reassure the student by suggesting, "When your father has been unemployed for at least 10 weeks in 1983, file a Special Condition Application for Federal Student Aid."

Usually, financial aid eligibility is calculated using 1982 income information. In certain cases, however, you can file a Special Condition Application. This application lets you estimate your family's 1983 income information, and your eligibility for the Pell Grant and the Illinois State Scholarship Commission Monetary Grant. Financial aid will be calculated using that estimate instead of your 1982 income.

In general, you can file a Special Condition Application if your family's financial situation has changed recently for the worse because of:

- Death of a wage earner in your family;
- Separation or divorce;
- Loss of employment;
- Loss of non-taxable income or benefits, such as unemployment benefits, child support, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, welfare or non-educational Social Security benefits.

If you applied for Eastern financial aid in addition to the Pell and ISSC grants, write us a letter explaining the new special circumstances affecting your ability to pay your school expenses.

We will then tell you what additional documentation will be needed for us to revise the financial statement you filed with us earlier.

Remember, the Special Condition Application gives specific details about the circumstances that allow you to fill it out. You can file the form only if one of them applies to you.

Tomorrow: mistakes you may make when filling out aid applications.

Financial crisis threatens national recovery

(Editor's note: State governments are facing their worst crisis since the Depression. This first part of a four-part series on "The State of the States" examines the problems the states face, their causes and some of the remedies.)

by the Associated Press

The states of the United States are in a deep financial crisis that threatens American taxpayers with a wave of increases and could derail President Reagan's national economic recovery program.

Overlooked in the face of federal deficits in the $200 billion range and 12 million unemployed, the economic problems at the grassroots may run deeper and take longer to fix than the national problem.

A survey of the 50 states in mid-February found:

- Twenty-two states have deficits, totaling about $5.8 billion.
- Fifteen states have surpluses, totaling about $1.9 billion; most of the surplus was in oil-rich Texas and Alaska.
- Thirteen states expected to end the fiscal year, June 30 for most of them, with a zero balance, a step so close to broke that it would have been considered unacceptable only a few years ago.
- Thirty-three states had moved to save money by trimming budgets, hiring freezes or laying off state employees, deferring payment of bills, speeding up collections, transferring money from state trust funds and a variety of other devices.
- At least 16 others had been in deficit but had balanced their budgets with emergency spending and tax adjustments in recent weeks.

The $1.9 billion surplus subtracted from the $5.8 billion in deficits yields a national net deficit of $3.9 billion, compared to a $1.9 billion net deficit reported in a similar survey by the National Governors' Association in December.

Normally in times of national recession, state and local governments have expanded to take up the gap, softening the overall blow. This time they are shrinking instead and adding to the aggregate nationwide problem.

Since Reagan's national recovery program depends heavily on "supply side" tax cuts to spur investments, it is endangered by the swelling trend to reimpose taxes at the state level.

Lingering unemployment and drooping retail sales cut into the states' chief sources of money—income and sales taxes.

"Every state is in the throes of complete economic despair right now," said Gov. Scott Matheson of Utah, chairman of the National Governors' Association.

Backing the gloomy appraisals are figures turned up in the survey. While Hawaii expects to end this fiscal year with a $46 million surplus, the fiscal 1984 budget was being drafted would fall $255 million below anticipated revenue. Connecticut, already $55 million in the hole, foresees a $233 million shortfall next year.

The states also are facing unexpected money shortages at the time their citizens are demanding tax cuts. Spurred by the Proposition 13 initiative in California in 1978 that radically cut property taxes, 19 states passed legislation or amended their constitutions to limit the growth of spending or taxation. Residents of some states voted themselves rebates their treasuries are now unable to pay.

But the alternatives to new taxes now are disturbing—convicts turned loose on the streets, abandoned firehouses, crowded classrooms, potholes turning to craters and falling bridges.

California, traditionally thought of as one of the more prosperous states, is looking at a deficit of $1.5 billion or more. New York has borrowed to fill a $579 million gap for the budget year ending next month and is looking at a deficit next year of $1.8 billion.

For the first time in over a decade, Louisiana with all its oil and gas has cut back spending to make ends meet and still faces a $100 million deficit. Oklahoma, where oil pumps from the capitol grounds, staved off a $90 million deficit with austerity measures.

Michigan already has cut services to the bone and raised taxes as much as it dares and still faces a $900 million deficit. Illinois held off a $200 million shortage with spending cuts and now finds itself with another $200 million to make up.

At least six states are delaying payment of income tax refunds, keeping money that isn't really theirs long enough to prevent the ledgers from coming up short at the end of the fiscal year.

While slight of hand may satisfy laws against deficits, it doesn't fool anybody, especially Wall Street. In the past year Moody's Investment Service lowered the bond ratings of six states, two of them more than once—more than in the previous five years combined.

In addition to Wall Street reproaches, most states have concluded on their own that they have reached the limit of each remedies such as bookkeeping tricks or tinkering with non-controversial minor taxes.

Evaluations will be topic for meeting

by Linda Wagner

The Faculty Senate will continue discussion Tuesday concerning several aspects of the proposed faculty evaluations of deans and department chairmen.

Faculty Senate Vice Chairman Richard Goodrick said senators will get "basic feedback" concerning the proposed evaluations. He added that additional questions have been raised from the senate and will be recommended for consideration.

The proposed evaluations are the result of a senate subcommittee study instituted last semester after several senators expressed concern that faculty members have little input into the evaluation of deans and department chairmen.

In other business, the senate will discuss the value and validity of student-faculty evaluations.

Goodrick said the senate will discuss students signing the evaluations and the use of the evaluations in making personnel decisions.

Goodrick said he intends for discussion to solve questions raised by faculty members concerning the evaluations.

The Faculty Senate will meet at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Martinsville Room.

Meeting focus to be programs

In response to a request by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, questions concerning Eastern's education programs will be discussed by the Council on Teacher Education Tuesday.

Stanley Rives, Eastern provost and vice president for academic affairs, said because of the shifting demand for teachers in certain areas of education, the IBHE is conducting a statewide survey to find out how the universities are responding to the change.

Rives said one area of interest to the IBHE is information on the number of Eastern students preparing to teach in a specific area. This information could help predict which areas of education need more teachers.

The COTE will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Tuscola room.

Students can earn credit while studying in Madrid

by Beth Lander

Eastern students have the opportunity to spend the summer in Spain and earn college credit at the same time through Eastern's Annual Academic Program in Spain.

Anthony Osguera, recruiter for the excursion, said the academic program in Spain allows students to study at the University of Madrid from July 9 to Aug. 6 and receive credit at Eastern.

"This year Eastern has been awarded credit that enables students to enroll directly in the courses rather than having the credit transferred as it was last year," he said.

Luis Clay-Mendez, the program's Midwestern director, said students who sign up will live in a residence hall with students from other countries who are also enrolled in the program.

"There is a lot of interaction because the group travels and eats together," he said.

Students will attend classes on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday only, he added.

Osguera said he was associated with the program three years ago and has "only positive things to say about it."

The cost of the program, including tuition, is $1,395, he said.

Interested students can obtain further information about the program by contacting Clay-Mendez in Coleman Hall room 110E.

Financial aid seminar educates students on various types of aid

by Debbie Coventry

Students who attended a financial aid seminar Sunday received information concerning aid opportunities available at Eastern.

Director of University Relations Kenneth Hesler told the audience about special awards and scholarships which Eastern students may be qualified to receive.

Hesler said most of the 50 awards are academically oriented and have been established as memorials for past Eastern instructors and students.

Hesler also advised students to visit their major's departmental office to find out about various types of scholarships and awards which may be available.

Associate Financial Aids Director John Flynn presented a slide presentation on various types of available financial assistance and provided information on how to complete aid forms.

Flynn said financial aid forms should be completed by April 13 to assure processing of the applications.

Students can apply for assistance from the Illinois State Scholarship Commission and Pell Grant. A student may receive between $240-$1,250 from the ISSC and up to $1,800 from Pell Grant, Flynn said.

College Work Study and National Direct Student Loans can also provide students with needed financial aid. Aid for the CWS and NCSL programs is determined by computing the student's and family's contributions minus the student's total cost of education.

Also, Flynn said student's home communities can often provide some financial aid.

Students who desire further financial aid information may go to the Office of Financial Aids located in the east wing of the Student Services Building.

Library offers term paper clinics

Students who feel stress when they hear the words "term paper" may be interested in a series of term paper clinics offered this spring at Booth Library.

"The purpose of the clinics is to teach students basic library research and how to effectively conduct research for term paper topics," Kathleen Jenkins, coordinator of library instruction, said.

"The clinics have been arranged at different times in different weeks to meet people's schedules. Students don't need to sign up; they just have to come to the reference desk at the appointed time," she said.

Clinic schedules are located at the reference desk and at the floor directories, Jenkins added.

Chinese kill some female babies as a population control measure

PEKING, China (AP)—The murder of female babies, a frequent practice long ago in rural areas, is on the rise again in China, where the government prohibits more than one child per family.

China's new family policy—aimed at keeping the population under 1.2 billion in the year 2,000—is enforced by fines as high as $2,000 for an extra child.

Although no government statistics on infanticide are available, the official press is filled with grisly tales of the killing of hundreds of girls by parents determined to have a son.

Sons work in the fields, take care of their parents in old age, inherit property and bring wives home to work. Daughters cost money to feed, need dowries and are married off into other men's families.

Girl babies are drowned, strangled, tossed down public toilets and left to die in the wilderness, according to news reports, which say some local authorities "look the other way" if a little girl toddles off, trips in a well or dies of exposure.

Such reports revealed that the feudal preference for sons was not swept away by socialism. They also revealed a widespread disregard for Communist China's legal system.

More than 210 girl babies were murdered shortly after birth by their parents last year in two cities in southern Guangdong province alone, said the Feb. 13 edition of the Canton newspaper Nanfang Daily.

In some villages, the newspaper said, a bucket of water is kept ready by the mother's bed as she gives birth. If the baby is a girl, she is plunged into the bucket and drowned. If it is a boy, she nurses him and the family rejoices.

Because of centuries of female infanticide, certain rural areas, like Anhui province, face a serious imbalance in the sex ratio. In some places men have difficulty finding brides.

"In their keen desire to have sons, some men still torment their wives who bear daughters and worse still, they kill the baby girls through neglect or outright murder," the Peking Review said.

Chinese reports say the problem is "relatively small" in a country of 1 billion people, but foreign observers say it is probably larger than acknowledged. Premier Zhao Ziyang thought thought the problem severe enough to denounce at the National People's Congress in December.

In northeast Shandong province, Liu Chunshan threw his four-year-old daughter down a well in December, smoked a cigarette as she struggled and screamed "baba!"—father!

He had planned the murder after his pregnant wife was told by a sorcerer that their next child would be a son. Liu was sentenced to 15 years in jail in one of the few publicized cases in which prison terms were imposed for infanticide.

Recruit may fill QB shoes

Mike Lynch

Perhaps the biggest question Eastern's football staff faces this spring is finding a replacement for former standout quarterback Jeff Christensen. With Eastern returning 16 starters from last season's NCAA Division I quarter-finalist squad, head coach Molde said he realizes next season's success is based on finding a quarterback.

Junior college transfer Gary Scott said he believes he is that replacement and enters spring camp with the statistics to contend for the top Panther position.

Scott, who played the last two seasons at Los Angeles City Community College, was second among the nation's top junior college passers, throwing for 2,673 yards. His two-year total of 4,900 yards ranks him fourth highest in junior college history.

Wake Forest, Oklahoma, California State-Fullerton and the University of California-Los Angeles recruited the 6-foot-2, 185-pound quarterback. However, Scott said he chose Eastern after meeting assistant coach Cal Jones.

"Coach Molde and coach (Larry) Lund got me to come visit Eastern, but coach Jones got me to stay," Scott said.

By his own admission, Scott loves to throw the ball. "Last year in L.A.

we threw the ball so much that we would break in four or five new footballs a week," he said.

Scott said Eastern's quick passing offense is tailor-made for his style of play and the offensive line will be a definite plus.

"The offensive line here is so big and dedicated that I can't help but smile whenever I see one of those guys," Scott said.

Though Scott would like the starting quarterback job, he said nothing has been given to him.

"I'll have to earn the job, but I'm a competitor and I'm looking forward to the challenge. Hopefully I'll prevail," Scott said.

He added that maturity has made him shy away from individual statistics and now he strives for team-oriented goals.

"Everytime I unsnap my chin strap after a game I want us to have at least one more point than the other team," Scott said.

"I think a 15-0 record would be the best statistic to have, because it's one you could share with the school and community but most of all with your teammates and coaches," Scott continued.

"With the returning lettermen and new recruits, I think Eastern has all the ingredients needed for a championship season," he added.

Rebels win final home contest

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Some are calling this city of bright lights and green felt "Tark's town," as the Nevada-Las Vegas Runnin' Rebels continued on a roll that has made them the nation's No. 1 college basketball team.

Coach Jerry Tarkanian was the center of attention Saturday night as his Rebels closed out their home season and 20 years of basketball at the Convention Center.

The Rebels won 111-78 over Utah State, advanced their record to 24-0, and likely solidified their ranking as the nation's No. 1 team.

At least that's the way a standing-room-only crowd of 6,500 saw it. Chants of "We're No. 1" rocked the arena. All-American candidate Sidney Green stepped from a player's huddle late in the game to help lead the cheers.

When the final buzzer sounded, the crowd seemed reluctant to leave. Next year UNLV basketball will move from the crowded confines of the Convention Center to 18,000-seat Thomas Mack Arena. Some say it should be called "The House That Tark Built" in honor of the winningest active coach in college basketball.

Eastern's women cagers drop 71-53 decision to SIU

by Kathy Leahy

CARBONDALE—Char Warring pumped in 29 points to lead Southern Illinois-Carbondale to a 71-53 conference victory Monday over Eastern's women cagers.

Warring's 29 points is the most any individual player has scored against the lady Panthers this season. Warring was averaging 15.3 points an outing when she entered Monday's contest.

In addition, the 6-foot-2 forward played only 28 minutes of the entire game, leaving the contest midway through the second half with an injury.

However, Eastern did manage to hold Southern forward Sue Faber, who was averaging 11 points a contest, to only three points.

Southern center Connie Price saw limited action Monday due to a dislocated finger in her shooting hand and a shoulder injury. Consequently, Price finished the game with just seven points.

Price holds the nation's top field goal shooting percentage, averaging just over 70 percent.

Southern outrebounded the Panthers 45-22 and that, along with Eastern's 14 first-half turnovers, appeared to be the difference in the game.

Eastern was led in scoring by sophomore forward Toni Collins, who poured in 16 points, and by senior forward Kathy Lanter who chipped in 13.

The Panthers had a poor showing from the field, shooting only 33 percent, their worst performance all season. However, Eastern did have its best performance of the season at the charity stripe, making 15 of 16 for a remarkable 94 percent.

Eastern trailed the entire contest. The Panthers were down 35-22 at the half, and even though they notched all 15 free throws in the final half, their efforts fell short.

Eastern (18-6) will try to regroup against Butler University Thursday as the Panthers travel to Indianapolis.

Eastern (53)

Lanter 5 3-3 13, Conine 3 0-0 6, Corson 0 2-2 2, Collins 7 2-2 16, Hatfield 1 4-4 6, Farthing 0 0-0 0, Waldrop 0 0-0 0, Aldridge 0 2-2 2, Hynd 2 1-1 5, Sess 1 2-2 3.

Totals 19 15-16 53.

Southern Illinois (71)

Warring 13 3-4 29, Peeples 5 2-2 12, Price 3 1-2 7, Plab 3 0-1 6, Schmittgens 1 4-6 6, Jackson 2 0-1 4, Faver 1 1-2 3, O'Brien 1 0-1 2, Wilson 0 2-2 2.

Totals 29 13-21 71.

Cagers late rally comes up short; lose 82-75

by Kirby Flowers

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—Eastern's basketball team's rally fell short Monday as the Panthers dropped a 82-75 conference decision to Southwest Missouri State University.

The loss knocked Eastern out of first place in the Association of Mid-Continent Universities as the Panthers fell to 11-15 overall and 7-2 in league action.

The Southwest Missouri victory put the Bears on top in the AMCU with a record of 5-1 and lifted their season mark to 12-13.

The Bears used a 27-point effort from forward Bobby Howard, including a 17-point first half, to lift Southwest Missouri past the Panthers.

In addition, the Bears' 6-foot-9 center Ricky Johnson notched 19 points and hauled down 10 rebounds.

"Howard and Johnson each played well tonight," Eastern head coach Rick Samuels said. "I thought Johnson played exceptionally well."

"I didn't think that he (Johnson) was that good of a post player," Samuels added. "But he sure played a great game tonight."

Kevin Jones led Eastern offensively with 19 points, while Tim Dykstra and Kurt Lorenzen chipped in 18 and 10 points respectively.

Samuels said he was especially impressed with the play of Lorenzen in the second half and added the Panthers need that type of play from the bench to win.

"Lorenzen really got us going late in the game," Samuels said. "We have to get those players to produce for us in tight situations."

The Panthers jumped out to a 15-7 lead five minutes into the contest, but Southwest Missouri scored 10 unanswered points to take a 19-15 edge with 11 minutes left in the first half.

Southwest Missouri's Howard accounted for eight of the Bears' 10 points as the Panther defense was helpless against his long range shooting.

"We were just too timid tonight," Samuels said. "We didn't have anyone with enough guts to play the strong defense. We were too passive and just were not aggressive enough."

Southwest Missouri continued to dominate the first half action, building a 36-26 advantage over the Panthers with five minutes remaining.

Despite the Panthers' efforts to close the gap, Southwest Missouri took a 42-33 point advantage at intermission after the Bears' defense forced Eastern into 13 misques in the first stanza.

The smaller, quicker Southwest Missouri squad ran up its biggest lead of the night, 55-39, with 14:21 left in the game.

However, Eastern's Lorenzen sparked a second-half rally when the senior guard poured in 10 second-half markers and the Panthers closed the gap to 68-63 with 4:30 remaining in the contest.

With the Panthers threatening for the first time since the first half, Samuels called a time out to prepare his squad for the final run.

Unfortunately, the time out seemed to slow Eastern's rally and the Bears went back on top 72-65, putting the lead out of the Panthers' reach with 2:47 left to play.

In addition, Southwest Missouri employed a stalling game and with time running out the Panthers were forced to foul. The Bears hit 11 of 14 at the free throw line to ice the win.

Samuels said his squad was still in Panther guard Kurt Lorenzen hustles for a loose ball in Eastern's victory over the University of Illinois-Chicago last Saturday. Eastern, however, dropped a 82-75 decision at Southwest Missouri Monday night. (News photo by Fred Zwicky) good shape in the conference battle, but that they would have to work for the title.

"All is not lost," Samuels said. "We feel if we split on the road we can still win the conference title. Tonight we just missed a chance to take a major step toward our goal."

"Now we will have to lay our season on the line," Samuels continued. "No one is going to give us the championship. We will have to earn it."

Eastern will try to bounce back from the Southwest Missouri loss Wednesday when the Panthers travel to Indiana State University-Evansville in a non-conference contest.

"It is going to be a heck of a challenge," Samuels said. "They have everything to gain and nothing to lose."

Bus offered

Eastern's athletic department announced Monday it will provide a fan bus for the Panthers' basketball game against Western Illinois University Saturday in Macomb, Ill.

Tickets for the ride will be on sale for $20 each. Students and other Panther fans may purchase tickets until noon Thursday at the Lantz Gym ticket office. However, at least 40 fans must sign up to ride in the fan bus or the trip will be canceled.

The bus will leave at 2 p.m. Saturday from the south side of Lantz Gym, and will return after the game Saturday night.

Booters take third place in tournament

by Mike Lynch

Despite bringing an undefeated record to the fifth annual Eastern Indoor Soccer Tournament, the Panther booters managed only a third-place showing at Lantz Fieldhouse this weekend.

MacMurray College downed the University of Wisconsin-Madison in the title match to capture the 10-team tournament championship.

The Panthers posted victories over the University of Illinois in their opening game 1-0, Illinois State University in their third game 1-0, and Belleville Area Junior College in Eastern's final contest 4-0.

However, Eastern's attempt to repeat as tournament champions fell short, as a 0-0 tie to MacMurray College in their second game sent MacMurray to the title match ahead of the Panthers on the basis of goals scored.

Panther head coach Schellas Hyndman blamed a slow start and lack of individual concentration as his squad's biggest problems.

"We struggled in the first couple games putting the ball in the goal," Hyndman said. "Individually I don't think our players showed their true abilities."

Hyndman said a reason for the slow start and individual performances might be due to the fact that he did a lot of substituting with his players.

"In indoor soccer players need to play more, but in our situation with a lot of players we substituted more," Hyndman explained.

The Panther coach said he was impressed with the tournament play of Aldo Esposito and added the Eastern junior was the weekend's most consistent player.

"We started playing better as the day went on and our best game was probably our last one against Belleville," Hyndman noted.

The booters will attempt to rebound this weekend as Eastern travels to St. Louis to compete in the St. Louis University indoor soccer tournament.
